Mr. Michael Grange
 General Manager
 Macdonald Randolph Hotel
 Oxford, United Kingdom

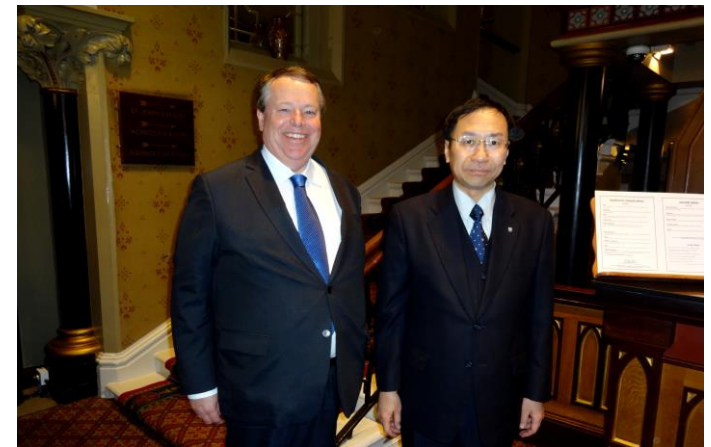

Dear Mr. Grange,

I'm currently staying at the Macdonald Randolph Hotel in Oxford on January 23, 2015. I appreciate your kindness in allowing me to stay at Macdonald Randolph Hotel Oxford and to comment to you, as I did at Osaka University, on January 23, 2015.

Mr. Michael Grange: General Manager of Macdonald Randolph Hotel Oxford (January 23, 2015)

Dr. Shida provides an explanation to Mr. Grange

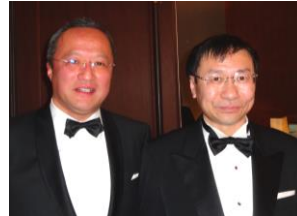

“There are first-class universities, near first-class universities, second-class universities and third-class universities in which a huge sum of money is often made through a secret deal with a broker who intervenes between the universities and the candidates in Japan. Many students of first-class universities or near first-class universities have a brain to be hired as a home-teacher. Kinki University which is the biggest university in western Japan is widely known as a third-class, unintelligent university in Osaka. There is a popular song of Kinki University: ‘Nande Kindai? — Why do we become a student of Kinki University (below average, unintelligent university) ?’ It’s funny! As General Managers of the Imperial Hotel Osaka and Tokyo know, many graduates of Kinki and Tokai universities have become presidents or directors of the companies or hospitals, etc. without a brain, like Mr. Eiko Harada, former President of McDonald’s Holdings Japan. Naturally, most students of Kinki University in western Japan don’t have a brain to be hired as a home-teacher the same as Tokai University (third-class, unintelligent university) students in eastern Japan. And Fujita Health University (third-class unintelligent university) has been a top-class fund-raiser (Average educational expenses for taking the National Medical Practitioners Qualifying Examination «worst level»: Sixty ~ Seventy million yen «Six ~ Seven hundred thousand US dollars»?) as educational expenses to use (‘Tsukau’) a broker and build (‘Tateru’) a largest university hospital (1500 beds) as an unintelligent university in Japan, different from Aichi Medical University (third-class unintelligent university) which has gathered huge money but not a top-class fund-raiser and its university hospital is not the largest hospital (900 beds). Last year, in 2014, I corrected many mistakes in Japanese medical words in the many clinical records at a clinic run by a director who was graduated from the general medical university, Showa University (third-class unintelligent university, Japan). And doctors and staffs from these third-class universities including Showa University really talk each other ‘Daijoubu!’ (‘We have a sense of stability. All right!’) in their clinic or hospital, unlike former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher (1925-2013) who ridiculed a not-brilliant politician similar to Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe who graduated from an unintelligent university. On December 6, 2014, I joined the medical program conducted by the Japan Medical Association at Tokyo Women’s Medical University (third-class unintelligent university). A male doctor next to me was fighting falling asleep and a few female doctors talked (‘Wakaru, Wakaru’) on the same level as Tokyo Women’s Medical University students. Professor Yoshiharu Kato made a noisy and loud lecture to wake them up (?). The medical teams of Japanese private universities have made a mistake by saying and writing that they are the same (‘Onaji’) level as the public universities (first or near-first class intelligent universities) usually (‘Fudan’). Those who got or get salary from the unintelligent university as a regular employee and cannot answer their academic career (brokers, huge educational expenses...) must keep their positions, behind ‘A Bottom (Sixty million yen «Six hundred thousand US dollars» for a cup of coffee, Soko) Line.’ They are in the dark world they have created now. When they cease to exist, their carrier is not going to take them back. As General Manager Grange knows, we do not have public funds enough on the earth to offer a much subsidy to such backdoor and unintelligent universities.”
