Mr. Ingo Schwegler
Hotel Manager (Assistant General Manager)
Steigenberger Hotel Davos
Davos, Switzerland

Dear Mr. Schwegler,

I appreciate your kindness in allowing me to have stayed at the Steigenberger Hotel Davos on January 15, 2013 and would like to give a comment to you, as I did at Osaka University, on January 31, 2013.

Mr. Ingo Schwegler: Hotel Manager of the Steigenberger Hotel Davos (January 31, 2013) * This message will be delivered to the Swiss people slowly through the five-star hotel in Davos in 2013.

Dr. Shida provides an explanation to Mr. Schwegler

“Doctors who are graduates or officials of private universities (backdoor universities) in Japan were often indignant at me who studied medical education. A veteran and full-fledged Doctor Shigeo Akaiwa, former lecturer of Saitama Medical University (third-class private university, Japan) and former director of the public health center (the Tokyo Metropolitan area), was indignant at me suddenly on January 28, 2013 and said ‘It is good (‘Ee’) that I (Dr. Akaiwa) send the health check-up results to patients after three months from the checkups since they saw the doctor in the hospital. I lay off you (Dr. Shida) today (January 28) because you broke the Medical Practitioners Act related to your clinical records (certificate). You never graduated from Mie University (near first-class public class university, Japan). Don’t excuse yourself! Shame on you! (You aren’t brilliant and I secure my post and salary as the president of the hospital.)’ Needless to say, his (Dr. Akaiwa) medicine at the level of Saitama Medical University without recognizing today’s situation about internal medicine and the law in Japan is the ‘Zero Marks Medicine,’ the same as the medicine by Tokyo Medical University (third-class private university). Although he laughed foolishly with the nurse after his explanation to me, I graduated from Mie University (Graduate School of Medicine). On the contrary, his son had dropped out (‘Okenai’) of Mie University (School of Medicine). Actually, there are many unintelligent and money-hungry doctors who sometimes show their unstable mental status to us in Japan whose behavior as a doctor doesn’t accord with a broader sense of health defined by the World Health Organization in 1946. To make matters worse, a huge amount of money is often made through secret deals with brokers, who mediate between universities and candidates. Dr. Syouichi Okinaga (deceased), hid their money in a bank in Liechtenstein, Switzerland’s neighbor, when he was President of Teikyo University (third-class private university, Japan). The Swiss army protected rich people’s assets including the underground money coming from across the world there as it does in Switzerland. We were able to confirm the ‘Doping - Backdoor Theory’ in Japan and Switzerland this month as well with the Tokyo Medical and Dental University (first-class public university) alumnus (Dr. Akaiwa), University of Tokyo (first-class public university) alumnus (Dr. Okinaga) and Swiss army. The opposite of the examinee’s spirit (‘Bankara’) was almost confirmed by the Waseda University (first-class private university, Japan) alumni (Lawyer Toru Nakahara and Lawyer Toru Hashimoto) on April 6, 2012. From the view point of the study ‘My Way,’ we can see the repeatability that the Japanese doctor (Dr. Akaiwa) troubles us to try to pass off a deer as a horse.”
